Web Layout Kit

With web site the first page a visitor see is the home page. From there they can branch out to many pages and most of those pages can be inter links. To help plain this, its best to use a flow chart type as seen in the simple layout shown below.

The flow chart method helps to plan the number of pages the links between pages and order form.

For us to know what you want your page to look like and what text to include the best way to handle this is to create a Word doc or similar with the way you want your page to look. Create each page with the graphics and the text as in the sample below even including the links to the other pages. The layout does not have to be exact.

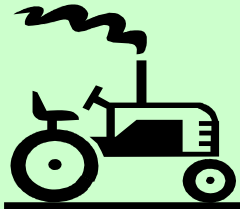

Home Page

 Menu Tractors Harvesting Seed Chemicals Live Stock Contact Orders	<h2>Harry's Farm Equipment</h2> Sales &amp; Spare Parts Phone: 03 12345678  Tractors : Harvest : Seed : Chemicals : Live stock

This sample is about as simple as you can get but very functional. Other connecting pages can still carry the same menu link as on the left of the page. But you may elect to have a just return link back to the home page as shown next page.

This Sample layout is simple; it may have links to other pages with more detail about the items for sale. You may include a link to the order or inquire page.
